LARGE AUDIENCE ENJOYS UNIQUE CHURCH SERVICE

The unique service of last Sunday evening at Grace Presbyterian church was more than a success in every way, and the large audience was entertained and instructed in the work of the church. Each speaker did himself proud, and the special numbers of music were well received. Two numbers on the cornet played by Mr. Chirolo were exceptionally fine. Mr. Gifford Teel sang with feeling and with power Mr. Stotts gave a real spiritual uplift in bringing the gospel message in song, while the duet on the flutes by the Swan brothers was something new and tentertaining. Mr. Emerson's two numbers on the harmonica were well received.

At the conclusion the men of the program challenged the women of the church to put on a better program if they could, and we hope the challenge is accepted.

We are coming to the national date for the Memorial services and the pastor will speak on "Looking forward and to the past, or what we owe to the past and also to the future. What can we do to make others happier and better in these days."

A splendid program is being prepared for the annual Childrens' day, on June 6, at 8 o'clock, and the school is working to have two hundred present at that service. The program in full will be given next week.

The girls' club met in the church Tuesday afternoon.

It is said that rubbers on lead pencils are still a confession that people are liable to make mistakes, and so we ask you to ponder the one thought: That truth bears fruit only when rooted in a pious life.

If you are not attending any church, Grace Presbyterian holds a warm welcome for you.

FRANKFORT STREET GIVEN MAIL SERVICE

At the regular meeting of the Daly City Board of Trustees, held at the City Hall last Monday night, considerable business of interest to the public was transacted.

A communication was received from Postmaster James Powers of the San Francisco district, announcing that mail service will start this week on Frankfort street. The board has been urging this action for several weeks.

The board plans to start a registration campaign in a short time, to be known as "Registration Week." The southern part of the state has registered practically its entire voting population, while the northern end and the bay counties have but about one-fourth of their voters registered. Daly City wants a big registration as an example to the other cities, and as a means of checking on our population.

Trustee Sundermann, chairman of the library committee, reported that several alterations in the library, permitting better service were being made.

A Bellevue avenue street assessment for unpaid street work in the West End was favorably voted upon.

The Pacific Gas and Electric Company was granted permission to erect a number of poles in different parts of the city, in order to give better service.

A report was received that the County Line Pet Farm would be vacated and moved very soon. This will greatly improve the entrance to San Francisco.

City Clerk B. C. Ross was granted a two weeks' leave of absence, beginning June 1.

The City Manager of San Mateo was present at the meeting, and at its conclusion congratulated the trustees on Daly City's noted progress, and the volume of business handled by the board.

CLASSMATES MEET AND PLAN REUNION PARTY

The object was to lay plans for a reunion party. This party will be held Saturday, June 5. A dinner at the La Favorite, a well known French restaurant, will be followed by a party at the home of Mrs. Jean O'Rourk on Evergreen avenue, where the larger portion of the previous class parties were held. Those present at the meeting Tuesday evening from Daly City were Beula O'Rourk, Irene Froom, Jeanet Jones, Edwin Kingsland, Everett Rolff, Fred Junker, treasurer, and Fletcher Cook, president. George Wohler, also a member of the class, was unable to attend. Paul Williams, of Colma, acted as chauffeur.

EXHIBIT ATTRACTS IMMENSE CROWDS TO HIGH SCHOOL

The annual exhibit that was held at the Jefferson Union high school last Friday afternoon and evening was a great success. Many people attended, and showed their interest in the work of the students by visiting the class rooms and commenting on the work.

All the grammar school exhibit was in the auditorium, while the high school exhibits were in the class rooms. In the chemistry laboratory rooms, those students taking chemistry entertained the people by making soap and alcohol.

The painted scarfs that were on exhibit in the art room won a good deal of admiration from the people. Every class room had an exhibit that was of interest.

During the afternoon and evening, programs were given by both the grammar schools of the district and the high school.

MOB THREATENS DRIVER HELD AFTER LONG CHASE

Chased three miles across the city by two motorcycle policemen and threatened by an angry mob crying "Lynch him" when finally captured, Alvin Casares of Colma was charged before Police Judge Daniel S. O'Brien with driving an automobile while intoxicated, says the San Francisco Bulletin. Policeman Joseph Wickstrom, who started after Casares at Twentieth and Valencia streets, and Policeman Edward O'Day, who joined in the chase, testified they trailed Casares at a speed of sixty miles an hour before they forced him to halt at Geneva avenue and Mission street. There the scores of motorists whom Casares had narrowly missed in his wild ride caught up and the arresting officers with difficulty preevnted the crowd from roughly handling Casares. His case was postponed until June 3.

ASSOCIATED FIREMEN MEET AT SAN CARLOS

The Associated Firement of San Mateo County met Tuesday at San Carlos.

At this meeting four new offices were created, a second vice-president and three trustees. The trustees are H. Smith, of Menlo Park; M. Gee, of San Carlos; and Chief Davis, of Woodside.

The newly organized fire company of Woodside was well represented.

A committee was appointed to investigate the possibilities of the lowering of insurance rates throughout the county.

At the close of the meeting the firemen adjourned to the San Carlos restaurant, where an excellent spread was served by the San Carlos Fire Department.

These meetings of the Associated Firemen of San Mateo County are resulting in much good to the different fire departments of the county, and a great deal of interest in the meetings is being shown by the members.

VOTERS REGISTRATION DRIVE IS UNDER WAY

You must register in order to vote at the state elections August 31 and November 2. State progress demands that you do it now.

This message is being broadcast throughout Nothern and Central California by the San Francisco registration committee, which opened its drive this week to secure a maximum registration of voters in this section of the state. Marshal Hale is chairman of the committee, and D. V. Nicholson, assistant secretary of the California State Automobile Association, is secretary.

The committee was appointed as the result of the recent meeting of highway leaders from all parts of Northern and Central California held in San Francisco under the auspices of the State Automobile Association. It was pointed out at the meeting that in addition to the gasoline tax measure for financing completion of the state highway system there will be numerous measures on the ballot at the general election of vital importance to this section of the state.

Radio broadcasting stations,motion picture theatres and luncheon clubs throughout Nothern and Central California have offered their cooperation in bringing home to eligible voters the necessity of registering. In San Francisco, Hale is working with the retail merchants on a plan to have them carry an appeal to register in all their newspaper advertising.

ACCIDENTAL DEATH VERDICT IN SAN BRUNO AUTO CRASH

Joseph Paggi and Mrs. Gertrude Canazan, of San Francisco, who were killed when the automobile in which they were riding crashed into the rear of a truck near San Bruno, Thursday morning of last week, were victims of "accidental death," according to a verdict of the coroner's jury. The truck into which the car driven by Paggi crashed at a high rate of speed was parked beside the highway, and equipped with a tail light, the jury found. The light was in operation and the truck was clear of the paved portion of the road, it was testified by witnesses. The vision of the driver of the ill fated car may have been obscured by fog, acording to Leo Martinelli, of Colma, who was in charge of the truck. Mrs. Canazan was killed almost instantly, while Paggi died several hours after the accident.

GIRL BADLY BURNED AS STOVE FLARES UP

Miss Dorothy Lewis, a 15-year-old Woodside girl, is in the County Community hospital at Beresford, suffering from painful burns received when she attempted to put out a small fire at the home of J. A. Davis, in Woodside, where she resides.

Miss Lewis had ignited an alcohol stove and as it started to burn it flared up. Becoming alarmed at the prospects of the fire spreading and endangering the entire house, she reached for a pan of water and threw its contents onto the stove.

The water only caused the blaze to flare up and spread to the girl's clothing. Soon she was a mass of flames, and her cries brought members of the household. She was wrapped in a blanket in time to save her life, but she was painfully burned about the arms, chest and shoulders.

First aid treatment was rendered and the injured girl was taken to the hospital. While her condition is said to be serious, the burns are not expected to prove fatal.

OFFICERS INSTALLED BY COUNTY P. T. A.

At an all day meeting held Friday of last week at Lomita Park, Mrs. George F. Keil of San Francisco, past president of the Second District Congress of Parents and Teachers, installed officers of the San Mateo County Federation, as follows: Mrs. L. G. Owens, San Mateo, president; Mrs. J. J. Garland, Menlo Park, first vice-president; Mrs. J. E. Baughn, Redwood City, second vice-president; Mrs. Allan Hunt, Burlingame, treasurer; Mrs. James O'Keefe, Menlo Park, recording secretary; Mrs. W. A. Wood, Burlingame, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Bird Marshal, San Bruno, historian; Mrs. W. W. Holt, San Mateo, financial secretary; Mrs. Rosamond Gatchell, San Carlos, auditor; Mrs. Earl Steinbeck, Burlingame, historian.

In an address preceding the installation, Mrs. Keil urged that members of the organization themselves learn the facts they wish to teach their children and that the ability of getting along well together was a great attribute to success.

"The Mental Awakening of the Child" was the subject matter of an inspiring address by Miss Pansy Jewett Abbott, county superintendent of schools, who urged that children be trained to responsibility and taught to interest themselves in the early years in music, art and color. She stated that "imagination is no excuse for untruthfulness," and stressed the necessity of instilling the ideas of absolute untruthfulness in the child. That children have definitely benefited by Parent-Teacher Association work is the belief of the speaker.

Endorsement of the work and promise of support to Philharmonic Society of the peninsula was unanimously voted at the conclusion of the explanation of the plans and purposes of the organization by Mrs. George B. Armsby.

At the business session, in charge of Mrs. L. G. Owens, the resignation of Mrs. W. H. Kimball as financial secretary was accepted with regrets and Mrs. W. W. Holt of San Mateo elected to fill the vacancy. Mrs. E. W. Cleary was elected to fill the office of fourth vice-president of the San Francisco district. The position includes extension work on San Mateo county.

During the summer months members of the federation will earn money themselves, no amount to be specified and present it to the federation at the first meeting in the fall, to be used in the scholarship fund of the federation

Autoist Runs Into Bunch of Trouble

Trouble heaped high upon the shoulders of R. J. Mudelman, aged 29, of San Francisco, after his arrest Wednesday night in Redwood City on a charge of speeding. He was found to have liquor in his possession and when taken to jail was booked on two charges. Later the police investigators declared that the automobile which he was driving had been stolen.

TELEPHONE HANDY

The telephone often has followed soldiers into strange lands—and stayed there—just as it followed the Germans into Lithuania in 1915, where previously the telephone had been unknown.—Dayton, Ohio, News.

Preservative treatments which prolong the life of telephone poles and cross-arms save the telephone users of the United States a million dollars a year.

Woman's Rights Well Established in Tibet

Marriage in Tibet is not the least interesting of the customs of that remarkable country, writes an exploring globe-trotter in a British paper, reported by the Atlanta Constitution. As a rule it takes place only in families possessed of wealth and social position. According to the laws of Tibet, the eldest brother has the first right to marry, since he alone inherits the ancestral property. But if there are brothers the bride is shared by them as by so many junior husbands. On the day of the wedding the bride is barricaded in her home. Long arguments, in which the whole village takes a part, over the profitableness of the marriage are indulged in through a hole in the door. Finally a scarf is waved, as a sign of surrender and the gates are opened. The bridegroom's mother then hands out sour milk and cakes to the guests and the ceremonies begin. The Tibetan woman is very much the head of the household. The men must bring their earnings to her. When they need money they must ask for it. A husband who is idle too long is liable to be reprimanded or even divorced and driven away.

Time to Demonstrate Claim to Efficiency

A sarcastic old Irishman, the president of a small but well-known industrial company, was anxious to show production figures and he sent word for a brand-new efficiency expert who had succeeded in talking him into the ways of ultra modern business administration. The expert had succeeded in worming his way into a vice presidency as "vice president in charge of personnel." A messenger came from the expert:

"Mr. Jones says he is tied up and cannot get away."

The president drew a breath of satisfaction that the new executive had begun so industriously. He talked 20 minutes and again sent for the expert.

"Mr. Jones says he is tied up but is trying to get away."

The president didn't like this, but waited 15 minutes before trying again. The same answer came back, so he penned this note:

"Houdini gets out of a straightjacket and handcuffs under water in 40 seconds. I don't expect this from you but would appreciate your getting untied very soon or not claiming you're such a tremendously efficient guy!"

Evarts Scored on Depew

Sir Theodore A. Cook in his book, "The Sunlit Hours," tells this story concerning the two American wits, Chauncey Depew and William Evarts: "At a large dinner Chauncey Depew was once very much annoyed to find that he was expected to make his oration before Evarts instead of speaking later on. So he went and sat down at the end of the room with the idea of chaffing his rival when the opportunity should serve. Evarts, whose eloquence was as easy as his wit, began his speech with a bird's-eye view of American history from Noah to Narragansett pier, without a single semicolon. Depew sprang up, at the first pause, and cried out: 'Mr. Chairman, I ask whether we are supposed to sit here and listen to such sentences all night.' 'I am sorry,' replied Evarts, instantly, that my friend, Chauncey Depew, has now joined the criminal classes in deploring long sentences.'"

Ears on the Increase

Are your ears larger than your grandfather's? This is a problem to which you have probably never given any thought; but, if you compare your own photograph with some of those in the family album, you will probably find that your ears are larger than those of the last generation.

A prominent ear specialist has proved by measurement that the tendency of the human ear is to grow even larger. The reason, he suggests, is the increased number and volume of sounds, which is a feature of modern life, especially in cities, and the more complicated demands which are thus made upon our hearing.

Early Silver

Artistic silver work was wrought in America long before the Declaration of Independence, and some dextrous examples of the skill of early silver designers are still extant. Daniel Henchman advertised in the Boston Evening Post in 1773 that "He makes with his own hands all kinds of large and small plate work, in the genteelest taste and newest fashion, and of the purest silver." Jacobus Van der Spiegel and Garrett Ouclebagh were both experts at handling silver in New York. There exists a chalice, presented to the First Reformed Dutch church of Kingston, N. Y., devised by Jacob Boelen in 1682.

She Was Surprised

The schoolgirl was a very gentle, sweet creature. Her teacher always thought of her as most refined, as a girl who always spoke softly, and thought delicately. She was not a good student, neither was she a very poor one. Her marks were apt to be just below passing. Finally came a crucial test. The girl just passed it, but this result had not yet been given to her. Seeing her teacher alone at the desk at recess time, she stuck her head in the door to ask fearfully, "Did I pass?"

"Yes, you did," said the teacher.

"My gosh!" said the girl.—Springfield Union.

Travelers Will Miss Old Dutch Windmills

The picturesque Dutch windmills are fast passing from the landscape of the land of dikes. The Dutch millers are modernizing their mills and turning to electricity. They are right, of course; but along with the great blades and stubby towers there will vanish much that is quaint and pictorial in tradition as well as in architecture, for the miller has made his mill, through many generations, show and express his joys and sorrows.

Always the Dutch miller has given his mill a name and called it by that; never just the "mill." When a daughter of the household married, the mill was gayly adorned; when a member of the family died, the mill was put into mourning, and the degree of that mourning was governed by fixed rules of windmill etiquette. If the owner died, all the 20 boards in the arms of the mill were taken out, and the mill stood motionless for a given time, as if in grief over the loss of its owner. When the church bells tolled, marking the procession of the funeral from church or home to the cemetery, the boardless blades were turned in unison with the bells. When the wife of the miller died, 19 boards of the blades were removed; for a child of the family, 13 boards; for the miller's parents, 11 boards, and so on down the line of relationship to the children of cousins, for whom one board was removed.—Youth's Companion.

American Writer Who Turned to Buddhism

It is common for people of other lands to come to America and become citizens of the United States, but we seldom think of Americans taking out naturalization papers and so becoming citizens of some other country. Yet one famous American writer did just that.

This writer was Lafcadic Hearn, who was really an American, although he was born on a Grecian island of an Irish father and a Grecian mother. At the age of sixteen he ran away from London, and then came to this county, where he worked on a number of newspapers. Later he was sent to Japan to write articles for a magazine. He became so fond of that country that he spent the rest of his life there, adopted the Buddhist religion, became a Japanese citizen, dressed in the costume of the country and married a Japanese wife.

Hearn thus became almost completely an oriental, and better than any other occidental he has told us about the people of the Far East. Having himself become one of them, he was able to understand them more fully than any other westerner.

Bargain Finally Struck

The Scotsman, legend and story remind us, is rarely an impulsive fellow. Therefore, this story, though gospel, is not calculated to surprise. A certain well-known Scot, an intellectual, saw, in a bookshop, Amy Lowell's two-volume life of "John Keats." He coveted it on the spot, but went away, the battle against extravagance and indulgence strong within his breast. Day after day he returned to turn the leaves and to torment his soul. In the expansive season, late one night near Christmas, he met the bookseller, haled him home, and poured a sample of very fine sherry for his midnight guest, saying no word of "Keats." Next morning early to the bookshop came the intellectual Scot. Three bottles of sherry for the precious volumes? It was his capitulation to the delights of the mind; he had held out for days. The bargain was eventually struck, although considerably more sherry was involved in the transaction.

Origin of Flowers' Names

The purple fox-glove, which blooms in its greatest profusion on Irish hillsides, is so called because it is believed that the fairies use these blooms for gloves during some of their ceremonies. The rosemary, an evergreen shrub of the mint family, is a native of the Mediterranean regions, and takes its name from the Latin word, rosmarinus, which means sea-dew. This is accounted for by the fact that when this shrub is seen in massed form it looks like blue-gray mist blown over the fields from the sea. The iris comes to us from the Greek word meaning rainbow. The primrose is derived from the Latin words, prima rosa, the first rose of spring.

By a Chinese Humorist

A master was teaching one of his pupils arithmetic. He asked him: "What is 1 plus 1?" The scholar replied, "I don't understand." The teacher said, "You certainly are a blockhead. Let me ask you again. You are one person. Together with me how many people does that make? Do you understand now?" "Oh, yes," he replied. "How many is it?" asked the teacher. "Two blockheads," replied the pupil.—Peking New Mandarin.

A Guide Needed

"What do you do when winter breaks up?" asked a man for whom Toofus had been guiding.

"I may go to Niagara falls," responded Toofus, "and be a guide."

"But what is there to guide about at Niagara falls? Everything is in plain sight."

"A guide goes around with honeymooners," said Toofus, "and keeps them from walking into those falls."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

AMERICAN PEOPLE DEMAND HIGHEST TYPE SERVICE

The World News of Roanoke, Va., in a recent editorial, said:

"The telephone is only one of the many things that the modern American takes for granted. When he calls his friend or business acquaintance a dozen times a day and gets his call through in a flash, or when he puts in a business call and gets his party in a few minutes, he gives little thought to the inventive genius or the tremendous development which has made this service possible.

"The newspaper, for instance, is dependent to a huge extent on telephone service. The various press association services come in over leased telephone wires. A large part of the news of the surrounding territory comes in by telephone. A newspaper without good telephone service would be completely at sea.

"In nearly every other business the same situation exists. Likewise, in nearly every home, the whole family has become dependent upon the telephone.

"Teddy Roosevelt used to talk about good trusts and bad trusts. Today, it is quite as pertinent to talk of good public utilities and bad ones. The telephone system is an excellent public utility, and the public generally recognizes this fact."

The Portland, Ore., Journal handled approximately three-quarters of a million lines of classified advertising over the telephone last year.

ONE MOTOR CAR FOR EVERY 5.8 PERSONS

Government Clerks Ride to Work in Washington, and They Ride in Their Own Machines. This Picture Shows the Rear of the Navy Building.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

More than 20,000,000 motor vehicles were in use on the highways of the United States in 1925, according to the bureau of public roads of the United States Department of Agriculture. The total registration reported was 19,954,347, but there were in addition 96,929 state and federal government-owned vehicles not included in this figure.

The increase in registrations during the year amounted to 2,360,670 or 13.4 per cent. Florida reports an increase of 46.8 per cent, while Utah, Mississippi, Alabama, Arkansas, North Dakota and Texas all report increases of more than 20 per cent. Truck registration increased 14.5 per cent for the entire country.

New York Leads.

New York leads in total registrations with 1,625,583, followed by California, Ohio, Pennsylvania and Illinois in the order named, all with registrations of over a million.

There is now one motor vehicle for each 5.8 persons in the United States. California has only 2.9 persons for each motor vehicle, while Iowa has 3.6, Nevada 3.7, Kansas 4.0 and Oregon 4.0. At the other end of the list is Alabama with 12.0 persons per vehicle, but ranking among the highest in increase during the year.

The total revenue from registration fees, permits, etc., amounted to $260,619,621, of which $177,706,587, was made available for state highways, $19,124,014 for state road bonds and $48,396,471 for local roads.

The total motor vehicle registration by states, not including official state and federal cars and eliminating so far as possible re-registrations and nonresident registrations, was as follows:

LARGE FACTOR IN SPEEDWAY RACING

Drivers Strive for Split-Second Difference in Running Time.

By EARL COOPER, Noted Race Driver.

The most variable factor in speedway racing today is the driver. The performance of which the cars themselves are capable can be determined before each race almost in terms of exact science.

Earl Cooper.

To illustrate how scientifically exact the profession of speedway racing has become, it might be pointed out that drivers are striving continually for such a small difference in time as a tenth of a second per lap on the 1¼-mile ovals. They realize that their ability or inability to achieve this may mean the difference between winning or losing a race.

Engines Are Identical.

The engines, in fact the entire race cars of today, are practically identical. To achieve this split-second difference in speed, therefore, it is necessary that the race driver give vital consideration to factors which would be considered negligible even in most experimental work. Every detail pertaining to the car must be exactly correct, as near as human ability can make it, if the car is to perform to the standard of which it is capable.

It is a fact that a difference of a small fraction of a second in lap time may be traced to a slight difference in the spark plugs, or even in one spark plug.

That they may secure the maximum performance from their cars, practically every driver insists on a new set of plugs for each race, even though they may have been driven, in some cases, not to exceed 100 or 150 miles. They realize that the terrific strains imposed on spark plugs under racing conditions are so great that they must have undergone some deterioration, even in the short distance they have been run. In fact, they consider that 500 miles on the speedway is equivalent to from 5,000 to 10,000 miles in a passenger car.

Spark Plugs Deteriorate.

Instances have been many where, after a set of plugs has been through one severe race, the car, in its trials for the following race, actually was incapable of performing within a tenth of a second per lap of what it previously did. Sometimes this loss of speed has been even greater.

This being the case, it is evident that there is deterioration to spark plugs in ordinary passenger car service. If racing plugs are changed at least every 500 miles, the spark plugs in passenger cars certainly should not be run more than 10,000 miles without changing them for new ones. That applies to every spark plug I have ever used, whether in racing or for ordinary passenger car driving.

Propeller Shafts Very Difficult to Handle

Propeller shafts are difficult to remove and replace when reassembling the car after a rear-end repair job. Most repair men do this work by hand, although it is a back and arm-breaking proposition. A common screw-jack with rachet handle can be made to assist greatly not only in this but in other repairs.

The jack is bolted to a wooden base to which casters are fitted so that it may be rolled around. A special yoke, made to hold the shaft, fits in place of the usual jack top, as shown in the illustration. By having the yoke a loose fit on the screw top it is free to turn in all directions.

To operate, the jack is placed beneath the shaft tube and is elevated until the yoke takes the weight of the unit. The set screw is then tightened and the outfit is ready to be pulled out. This also keeps the splined end of the shaft out of the dirt.—Popular Science Monthly.

Accidents Caused by Jay Walkers

Pedestrians are responsible for a great many automobile accidents. Some of them need guardians to escort them across the streets. Too many jaywalkers ramble about without restraint, crossing thoroughfares where it is most convenient for them to do so, getting in the way of motorists who have the right of way and generally clogging up traffic. Very often motorists have to suddenly pull into curbs to avoid striking jaywalkers endangering their own lives and property, only to be greeted with unkind words by the thoughtless pedestrians.

It is more important for the pedestrian to be careful than for the motorist, for it is usually the pedestrian who is injured in an automobile accident. Of the men, women and children killed by automobiles during 1925 two-thirds or three-quarters were pedestrians.

Death is so permanent!

25 COTTAGES FROM THIS TREE POSSIBLE

Standing in the timber holdings of the Little River Redwood Company near Crannell, Humboldt county, is a gigantic redwood which, if felled and milled, would make a sufficient quantity of lumber to construct twenty-one five-room bungalows. In a letter received a short time ago by State Forester M. B. Pratt, officials of the company state that the tree is 308 feet in height and measures twenty feet in diameter five feet above the ground. The board footage of the tree is calculated at 361,366.

Since the average amount of lumber that goes into a five-room bungalow is 17,000 board feet, the tree would furnish enough material to "build up" a street more than three blocks in length.

This mighty forest monarch is believed by State Forester Pratt to be one of the largest trees in the state outside of national forest areas.

The home of the Red Emperor grape, Exeter, Tulare county, wants a first-class band to toot the merits of Exeter and the Kiwanis club of Exeter proposes to get such an organization. Exeter has been without a band several years, but a committee is now actively engaged in listing prospective jobs and positions for musicians who might desire to locate in Exeter and play on the side along with a goodly number of regulars who will be used as the nucleus.

Tulare, Kings and Fresno counties were quite a revelation to a group of officials of the Pacific-Southwest Trust and Savings Bank, from southern California, who have been spending the past few days in these counties on a tour of inspection. Conditions, they admitted, were much better than they had been led to believe and all admitted that unquestionably this section will receive a much higher rating for loan purposes.

While the heavy April rains in San Fernando valley benefitted most of the growers they did some damage to various matured crops, especially to the hundreds of acres of lettuce in the Reseda vicinity and between Reseda and Van Nuys. Just as the bulk of the lettuce crop was about to be harvested and shipped, the rains came, bursting the heads in the field. Some of this lettuce has been culled, harvested and shipped, but most of it was left in the fields.

The city manager of Visalia, Tulare county, is at present engaged in the task of developing a model poultry ranch on the Visalia municipal farm two miles west of Visalia. It will perhaps, be the first model poultry ranch actually developed and the property of any municipality in California and is to be developed for the double purpose of promoting the industry and materially adding to the city exchequer.

Officers in Marysville have about reached the conclusion that the Marysville offices of the Western Pacific railroad are the special object of the crooks of this section. Within the past few months the depot agent has been held up, box cars have been robbed, property stolen from the right of way, while most recently the baggage room was burglarized. Bedding shoes and clothing were included in the loot.

Old prospectors in Placerville, Eldorado county, were attempting to retrace the meandering course of a horse with gold-flecked hoofs, hopeful that they will find an earth pocket lined with gold. The excitement was caused when the horse was taken to a blacksmith shop to be shod. The blacksmith lifted up one of the animal's hoofs to put on new shoes, when the glitter of gold caught his eye.

The San Jose offices of the P. G. & E., will organize a "Sign of Progress" club in the near future it was announced from the Marysville offices of the company recently. The Marysville office formed a luncheon club under this name early this year and it has been so successful that other offices now want clubs modeled after it, San Jose being the first to take definite steps in that direction.

Tulare County Jersey cattle breeders are planning to organize a Jersey association, the object being to promote this particular breed in the county. At the present time there are said to be twelve dairymen in Tulare county specializing in Jersey cattle. They are expected to form the nucleus of the contemplated association.

The first step in a far-reaching plan to convert into tillable land 18,000,000 acres in California, rather than the 4,000,000 acres it is possible to irrigate under the doctrine of riparian rights was taken recently when a proposed constitutional amendment was filed with Attorney-General U. S. Webb.

At a location recently acquired in Merced by J. C. Cocanour in the industrial site of the Southern Pacific company, concrete foundation piers are being put down for a tomato packing shed, which the building contractor, expects to erect in time to permit packing to begin by the 1st of June.

The State Fish and Game Commission formally assumed a five-year lease on thirty acres of Yountville State farm for its proposed experiment in raising quail, partridges and pheasants to restock California mountain districts. The lease was approved by the State Board of Control.

The Seely section has the distinction of being first in the market in Imperial valley with tomatoes for the season of 1926, having sent out a crate on April 5.

The cornerstone of Sacramento's new memorial auditorium, now under construction was laid with colorful ceremonies recently by the California Grand Lodge of Masons.

At least a ten per cent reduction in insurance rates will be given grain farmers in the Oakdale district, Stanislaus county, because of the fire protection, afforded by the rural fire truck.

With a normal run off of water in June, the Oakdale and South San Joaquin irrigation districts will get storage this season, says the consulting engineer on the Melones reservoir project.

During the month of April the city clerk of Petaluma, issued building permits totaling $165,050, which is a record for the city. The largest permit was for St. Vincent's church for $130,000.

Forty thousand persons, half of whom were visitors, milled through the streets of Bakersfield recently inoculated with the gala spirit of Kern county's second annual "Cotton is King" festival.

Approval has been given the $2,000,000 power project of the Glenn-Colusa irirgation district, near Hamilton City, Glenn county, by the chief engineer of the district, according to recent announcements.

With a view to expediting the shipping and icing of eastbound fruit this season the Southern Pacific company has decided to increase its trackage, platforms and other facilities in the vicinity of Roseville.

A shortage of fruit hands in the Sacramento valley already this season has made itself manifest in many districts. This is according to Andrew G. Anderson, bureau manager of the state employment service office

California leads the nation in forest conservation matters, according to a report presented to directors of the California Development association at a two-day statewide conference held in San Francisco recently.

Hemet valley is preparing to harvest one of the largest apricot crops in its history. The trees are loaded with fruit and it is probable that the valley's previous high-crop total of 14,000 tons will be exceeded this year.

The use of narcotic drugs in California, is on the decline according to the belief expressed in Sacramento by Harry D. Smith, United States agent in charge of all narcotic law enforcement work in California, Nevada and Arizona.

That the new $70,000 parochial school of St. Marys, at Taft, will be completed in plenty of time to start school September 1, was the statement made by Rev. James P. Buckley, who has been in charge of St. Marys Catholic church in Taft since 1918.

Mrs. Mary Brooks of Sacramento, member of the first graduating class of the College of the Pacific—class of '53—will be in Stockton for the seventy-fifth anniversary of the institution, which will be celebrated during commencement week, June 13 to 15.

Because of high prices obtained for Irish potatoes in the Van Nuys vicinity this spring, many tomato and bean growers have turned their fields into potato farms, and this summer a very considerable crop is expected. Within the next two or three months it is predicted that potatoes will be cheaper than they have been for several years.

According to a government crop report issued on February 1, the Imperial irrigation district, at El Centro, contains 380,611 acres under cultivation, 155,080 of which is planted to alfalfa. Despite the success attained in vegetable and cotton growing here, dairying still remains the basic industry of valley ranchers, because of the fact that alfalfa does so well here.

The San Fernando valley agriculture club field crop contest is on, and thirty-five boys are doing everything they can to surpass each other in the quality and production of their crops. Each member in the contest has one-eighth of an acre of corn, onions, melons, potatoes, sweet potatoes or miscellaneous crops. Many of the last year's contestants have entered again.

La Hoh, the venerable healer of the Mohave Indian tribe, near Needles, is dead and a short time ago, his body, lashed to a burning raft, made its last journey alone down the Colorado river. The ancient sage, whose actual age seems to have been unknown even to himself, was a familiar figure in almost every Indian encampment in southern California, western Arizona, and Nevada.

Mariposa county's picturesque hills, from which thousands drew fortunes in the hectic gold mining era, was visited recently by several hundred members of the Merced County Chamber of Commerce automobile caravan, officially christening Murietta Trail, the one-time route of the notorious bandit who terrorized the San Joaquin valley and Mother Lode section of the state in the fifties.

Construction of three new vehicular ferry boats at San Francisco, costing $500,000 each, a third slip at the Oakland pier with an addition of 47,500 square feet of dock area, costing about $175,000, and extensive improvements at the Mission street vehicular terminals, are planned by the Southern Pacific. Contracts for the three boats will be let immediately.

The farmer and his family lead secluded lives, although the mechanical changes of the past twenty years have relieved the isolation. Automobiles, telephones, and the extension of interurban lines and the radio render life on the farm less lonesome.

The BULL'S EYE
Editor and General Manager WILL ROGERS

Another "Bull" Durham advertisement by Will Rogers, Ziegfeld Follies and screen star, and leading American humorist. More coming. Watch for them.

No Governorship For Mine

My good old friend the Governor of Oklahoma was in to see me at the theatre the other night. I had just had humorous mention as a candidate for that position, as they wanted to revive the Populist Party with me as the Standard Bearer.

Well, the Governor showed me what had happened to a friend of his who had been defeated for Governor in our state, so he discouraged me. I won't accuse him of doing it purposely, but he did. His friend's campaign expenditures were as follows:

"I kissed 6,000 babies; helped 42 voters thrash wheat; shook hands with the entire State; smoked 3,000 sacks of 'Bull' Durham; cut 22 cords of wood; helped brand 8,000 calves; spayed 4,000 of them; was sprinkled 8 times in Methodist Churches; totally immersed in cold water in muddy creeks three times by the Baptist; went to confession in every Catholic Town; paid dues to 11 Synagogues; charter member of the Holy-Rollers; listened to 800 get-together Kiawanis, Lions, and Rotary speeches; bought sheet and pillow slip in every Ku Klux Klan in the State; and then I was defeated.

"'Bull' Durham was my sole satisfaction not only during, but after election. It is the only thing that stayed with me."

THE GOVERNORS' CONFERENCE

The Governors' annual conference will be held at Cheyenne, Wyoming, July 26, 27 and 28. Governor Nellie T. Ross will be "hostess" to the visitors. The questions of state rights and economy in government and business, as advocated by President Coolidge, promise to loom large on the program. Plans are being perfected to entertain the visitors, who will include nearly all the governors and members of their families, and leading staff and feature writers of America.

At the close of the session, guests will be shown scenic, agricultural, industrial and frontier attractions of the great Rocky Mountain section, on a trip that will take a week's time and cover Wyoming, Yellowstone Park, parts of Idaho and Utah.

From the standpoint of a better national understanding of the West and its problems, it will be of great advantage to have the governors from all parts of the Union get a "close up" of this great section of the country, including its undeveloped resources.

WHEN THE BOSS IS AWAY

Many of us get the idea that if we should go on an extended vacation, or otherwise drop out of the daily routine, our business affairs would go to pieces. But that depends upon how well these affairs are organized beforehand.

It is related of Andrew Carnegie that after one of his new department heads had been in charge for a year, he sent him to Europe for six months. If the department didn't run better while he was away, the department head was fired upon his return. Carnegie's theory was that a man who could not organize a department so that it would function in his absence was not fit to be the head of it.

There is a great deal of practical value in this theory, particularly in the case of large enterprises. Where the subordinates feel that they must consult the chief concerning every minor detail, they fail to develop the ability to make decisions or assume responsibility. The chief at the same time keeps himself enmeshed in a mass of petty routine which prevents his giving adequate attention to larger problems

The president of a famous northern hotel was recently complimented by a guest upon the excellent manner in which the place had been conducted during the past winter. It developed that the president had just returned after six months spent in the South. He informed the guest that he had been away, and added:

"Everyone seems to feel that the house has run better without me, and that even the weather was better than in previous years."

FEWER SCHOOLHOUSES

Once America's pride, the "little red schoolhouse," with its barn-like single room and primitive equipment, is slowly but surely passing. More than 10,000 of these small district school buildings were abandoned in the past five years, their places being taken by the modern consolidated school.

With the rapid extension of good roads and the employment of motor busses for the transportation of children to these larger institutions, it seems inevitable that the one-room school, with its many handicaps, will more and more rapidly disappear.

While the district school must thus give place to a new and better system, it has filled and is still filling a paramount role in the advancement of the nation. To the self-sacrificing labors of faithful teachers in these rural schools, many famous men and women owe their early education and inspiration.

But the demands of progress must be met in education, as well as in all other phases of our increasingly complex civilization. The new and larger consolidated school, with its staff of better prepared teachers, its improved organization and its modern equipment, will mark an advance over the "little red schoolhouse" which must make for a more enlightened and efficient citizenship.

EXTENDING SHIPPING

While the nation is regaled with various plans for extending ocean shipping under the American flag, the McCormick Steamship Company of San Francisco quietly goes ahead and establishes a service from the Pacific Coast to the Eastern coast of South America.

Already the West Notus, the first of the McCormick fleet, has sailed with a cargo of Pacific Coast products for Buenos Aires. The West Notus carried a load of 4,000,000 feet of lumber and 1,000 tons of general cargo. The time required for the trip is thirty days.

Instead of going through the "hot belt" via the Panama Canal, the new McCormick freighters will follow the old Magellan route, down the west coast of South America and through the Straits of Magellan. This saves 1,200 miles and cargoes are not injured by the heat of the tropics.

The McCormick Steamship Company is part of the McCormick Company, one of the West's largest industries operating in sawmills, ocean shipping, logging railroads and allied industries. Its latest venture in establishing an east coast South American line will be a great boon to Western industries whose products are sought by South America.

TO REDUCE AUTO ACCIDENTS

It has remained for the National Bureau of Casualty and Surety Underwriters to propose one remedy which should prove to be an effective deterrent for reckless drivers.

In future, when licenses have been denied automobilists or when the right to drive has been revoked by duly authorized public officials the persons thus affected will be unable to obtain automobile isurance through any of the principal casualty and surety companies which comprise the National Bureau.

Motor vehicle commissioners in different states will furnish immediately to the National Bureau the names of all persons whose licenses have been revoked. This information will immediately be distributed to the companies and further insurance to the reckless drivers will be refused and existing insurance will be cancelled.

It is an established fact say the Bureau officials that many serious accidents are caused by criminal and careless motorists who continue to operate even after their licenses have been revoked for good cause.

Insurance carried by an irresponsible and reckless driver simply makes him more careless. The action of the casualty companies is a move in the right direction and if all states would co-operate with these companies in weeding out undesirable drivers, the ultimate result would be fewer accidents, and insurance at lower cost for careful automobile owners who are entitled to it.

THE WAY OUT FOR BUSSES

Petitions asking authority to sell the bus lines of the Indiana Red Ball Lines and Hoosier State Lines to traction interests, have been filed with the public service commission of Indiana.

Commenting on the situation, the Indianapolis Times says: "A year ago the bus business gave the impression that it would quickly wipe traction lines and steam railroads off the map. New lines were springing up on every side Bus operation seemed a quick road to fortune. And traction and railroad officials wept in their soup.

"But, as Fred Jones, receiver for the Red Ball Lines, says: 'It is becoming apparent that operation of motor busses must be co-ordinated with steam and electric transportation systems. The busses find it impossible to stand alone.'"

No doubt there is a real place for motor busses in the transportation field. But they must be fitted into that place. They aren't ready to supersede other long-established transportation mediums, but only to supplement them.

THE PLIGHT OF THE PRINTER

The printers and publishers of the country have been patient and long-suffering in their submission to government competition in the printing business, and they can not be blamed for entering an emphatic protest against the government competition which is seriously injuring their business.

If the Department of Agriculture should contract with an organization of poultry raisers, hog raisers or wheat raisers to furnish it certain amounts of these products which it in turn would sell at prices impossible for small farmers to meet, the situation would be about the same as that faced by the small printers of the country who can not meet government competition, in printing return addresses on stamped envelopes.

Philadelphia's telephone directory contains 1,971 Smiths, 1,364 Millers and 1,188 Browns. There are 174 William Smiths

Twenty-five years ago there were 6,000 telephones in what now comprises Greater Kansas City. Today there are 125,000.

In 1895, electric energy transmitted at 11,000 volts for a distance of 21 miles was heralded as the great achievement of the day.

Did the men responsible for California's present pre-eminent position in the electrical field stop with that accomplishment?

No—they spent their time and money in a development which now makes it practical to transmit electric energy at 220,000 volts for hundreds of miles.

This made possible the development and use of power resources—otherwise not economical—resulting in decreasing rates for electric energy.

GROWTH OF THE TELEPHONE IN THE IRISH FREE STATE

Use of the telephone in the Irish Free State is increasing. Several trunk circuits are now in service between Dublin and Cork, two between Dublin and Limerick, and one connecting Cork and Dublin. An automatic exchange is now being installed in Dublin, and a new exchange will soon be installed in Limerick. An effort is also being made to encourage the use of the party line system among the people in the rural districts.

Eighty-six per cent of the farms in the state of Iowa are equipped with telephones.

There are now as many as 11,000 public telephones in northern New Jersey.

BANKERS SURVEY STATE BANK LAWS

Find That Movement for State Guaranty of Bank Has Gone Into Eclipse.

New York.—A survey of state banking laws conducted by the State Bank Division of the American Bankers Association shows marked progress toward greater uniformity and more efficient bank supervision, it is declared by Frank W. Simmonds, in charge of the division, in a statement giving the results of the investigation. He says that the movement for state guaranty of bank deposits appears to have gone into eclipse.

"The division has urged that the office of bank commissioner be freed from politics and all other functions of state government and tenure be made more secure with sufficient compensation and discretion to attract men of outstanding ability," Mr. Simmonds says. "Gratifying progress has been made during the past year in important bank legislation in many states. Idaho, Wyoming and Oregon led the list by adopting entirely new modern banking codes, while Texas and Montana have new codes in preparation.

Uniformity Among State Laws

"The survey shows that it is generally agreed there should be a high degree of uniformity among the states in laws dealing with certain fundamental principles of bank organization, regulation and supervision, and that there is a strong tendency in this direction. We find a very definite trend toward increasing the minimum capital requirements of banks to $25,000; creation of banking boards to act in an advisory capacity with the state bank commissioner, and legislation empowering bank commissioners to take complete charge of insolvent banks and to liquidate them as distinguished from liquidation through the courts.

"We find also a trend toward legislation providing for closer supervision and regulation of building and loan associations; more equitable taxation of bank stock; legislation providing for merger, conversion or consolidation of banking institutions; the legalizing and regulating of what is known as 'departmental banking'; broadening the field for investment of funds of saving banks and trust companies, and increasing the power of the bank commissioner as to granting or denying charters for new banks, and authorizing his making reasonable rules and regulations governing bank management and prescribing penalties for the violation thereof.

"Additional general characteristics of state bank legislation are for increasing the compensation of the bank commissioner and lengthening his term of office of four, five or six years, with power to appoint necessary deputies and examiners; legislation providing for the reduction of mandatory bank calls to three and reducing the number of examinations required by law annually to one; making issuance of worthless checks a misdemeanor; limiting or prohibiting an officer or director of a bank borrowing from his bank unless his collateral is approved by a majority of the board of directors, and limiting or prohibiting the opening of branch banks.

Eclipse of Guaranty Movement

"The question of state guaranty of bank deposits appears this year to have passed into an eclipse, so far as the extension of the idea is concerned, notwithstanding the fact that state guaranty laws were recommended by the governors of two states, and bills were introduced in several of the states, all of which were defeated. The general tendency, so far as state guaranty of deposits laws are concerned, is distinctly the other way, the indications being that several states now having guaranty laws are trying to free themselves from this legislation. Oklahoma has abandoned the plan of state guaranty of deposits, and this year the South Dakota legislature has repealed the state guaranty law and has referred the repeal to the people at the next general election for ratification."

BANKERS RAISE FUND OF $500,000 FOR EDUCATION

A fund of $500,000 to endow scholarships and research in economics in American colleges was recently established by the American Bankers Association in celebration of its Golden Anniversary. The intention of the Foundation is to promote education in the direction of sounder general economic understanding. Half the total sum represents subscriptions by the American Bankers Association, the American Institute of Banking and individual bankers, and the other half quotas assigned to bankers in each state. The Association gave $50,000 from its reserve funds, and the American Institute of Banking, through individual subscriptions from its members, who are chiefly clerks in the banks, subscribed $25,000. Numerous subscriptions of $5,000, $2,500 and $1,000 each were made by individual bankers in all parts of the country.

THRIFT AND CRIME

Encouragement of thrift as a means of reducing crime is suggested by a well known publicist, who declares that extravagant habits in many cases are the direct cause of banditry.

Aside from the financial gains possible through economy and thrift, the habit of saving has a stabilizing effect upon one's character. The person who is laying aside something each week or each month with the idea of ultimately securing financial independence is more dependable than the one who spends his money as fast or faster than he gets it.

Many who have resorted to dishonesty in order to secure needed funds quickly are those who have been first led into extravagant living.

Habits of thrift should be inculcated early and should be encouraged at every turn. Those who have acquired such habits are generally industrious, ambitious and honest.

There are more telephones in the state of Michigan than in the entire continents of South America and Africa put together.

Those who make the same mistake over and over again lack originality.

Diagram Showing How to Add a Stage of Radio Frequency to a Three-Tube Regenerative Set.

By C. J. KELLY
In New York Herald-Tribune.

More distance, greater selectivity and an all-around better set may be had by using a stage of tuned radio frequency with three-tube regenerative sets of the type utilizing a variable tickler coil to secure feedback. Although intended for this special type of receiver, the tuned radio-frequency stage may be used to advantage with almost any receiver that is not neutralized.

Aside from increasing the distance and selectivity of the set, the extra stage will permit the use of a loop antenna—a highly desirable feature these days when stations are only 15 kilocycles apart and selectivity is an all-important thing. As the loop has directional properties, interference from man-made static can practically be eliminated by operating the set with the loop in such a position that it picks up a minimum of interference.

Aerial for Best Results.

With an aerial and ground the set will be found to be superior in some ways to many five-tube radio-frequency sets. The combination of tuned radio frequency and regeneration will make for better distance records.

The radio-frequency stage may be built in a small cabinet and placed alongside of the three-tube set.

A double-circuit jack has been placed across the secondary tuning condenser to receive the plug to which the two leads from the loop are attached. By using this method it only will be necessary to insert the plug to use the loop, the double-circuit jack automatically disconnecting the secondary coil.

The loop will be found excellent for use where it is impossible to erect an aerial. The set can be installed in an automobile or motor boat and operated in a few moments, as it only is necessary to connect the battery leads and insert the plug.

The parts for the radio-frequency stage are all standard, and while most fans already have some of the parts around their workshop they may be obtained in any well-stocked parts store for very little.

List of Parts.

The following is a complete list of parts needed to construct the stage: One radio-frequency coil, one .0005 variable condenser; one panel, 7 by 10 inches; one baseboard 6 by 6 inches; one standard socket; one rheostat, 30 ohms; five binding posts, brackets and screws for coil and baseboard.

If the coil is to be purchased, any fixed coupler having enough inductance in the secondary to permit it to work over the broadcast wave lengths (from 200 to 600 meters) when tuned by a .0005-microfarad condenser can be used.

To wind the coil at home a composition or hard-rubber tube about six inches long and three and one-half inches in diameter is used, as it is a stock size and will be easy to obtain. A spool of No. 22 gauge double cotton-covered wire will be ample for winding the coils and connecting the set.

A 10-turn primary and a 50-turn secondary are wound on the same tube, separated by about one-quarter of an inch. Be careful to wind both coils in the same direction.

After the connections have been checked the rheostats on both the stage and the detector are turned on. Tuning will be the same as with any other set. The dials will differ slightly (usually a few degrees) because of the circuits not being matched, but both circuits will be in resonance when a station's carrier wave is received loudest.

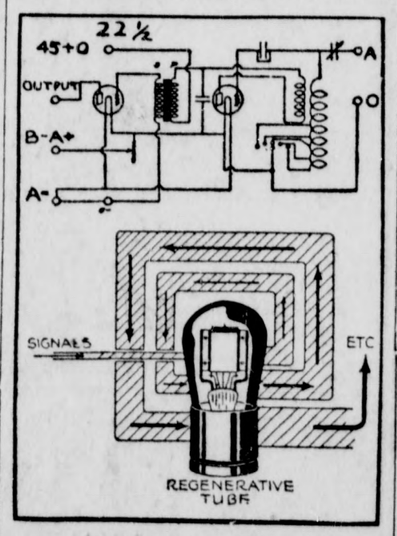
Excessive squealing or whistling may be caused by reversed primary leads or too high plate voltage. Reduce the plate voltage from 45 to 22 volts. If this does not stop the squealing reverse the leads to the primary on the detector coil.

FOREFATHERS OF RADIO

By GEORGE LEWIS
of The Crosley Radio Corporation.

While a student in the postgraduate school of Columbia university, New York city, Edwin Armstrong became interested in the development of receiving circuits for using the radio tube. Eight and nine-tube sets were coming into vogue, and it began to appear that soon the owner of a radio set would have to remodel his home in order to get it into one room. Armstrong invented a system whereby a single tube is used both as a detector and an amplifier, coils being arranged so that after the signal current has gone through the detector tube once, it is, in effect, sent back through that tube several times to be further amplified. The result is that one detector tube used in this way is equivalent to a detector tube and two or more amplifier tubes used in the old way. He called this system "regeneration."

Edwin H. Armstrong.



Regenerative sets became popular very rapidly, since a regenerative set operates as efficiently as any other type of set using several more tubes. They are still the most efficient type of set today. In fact, regeneration is the technical principle which has made it possible to manufacture the best of radio sets within the reach of the average man's pocketbook.

Strong Battery Voltage Necessary for Speaker

Many good sets fail to deliver sufficient volume on the loud speaker because they are not supplied with the necessary power to do so. Forty-five volts on the plates of the amplifiers will not deliver enough current to the magnets of the loud speaker to produce loud signals. Ninety volts will give much better results, and is certainly worth the additional cost. An extra grid bias is sometimes necessary with higher voltage, and this is connected with 4½-volt "C" battery, which is connected between the F post of the transformer and the filament. The negative terminal of the battery connects to F and the positive terminal to the filament.

Audio Howl

It happens sometimes that a steady howl or loud hum will exist in a loud speaker, and one is at a loss to account for it. This howl or hum is unlike the regenerative squeals, in that it will keep up indefinitely unless the set is shut off. In the majority of cases this trouble is due to an audio howl and can be stopped by removing the loud speaker from the top of the set or placing the loud speaker in another position.

A Radio Log Dial

A dial upon which call letters can be marked at the point at which stations are received can be made by cutting a circular piece of cardboard one inch larger than the dial. Glue it to the back of the dial and extend the original dial markings perpendicularly on the cardboard, using these pen markings as pointers to the call letters to be written in as stations are received.

Using New Tubes

There is no advantage to be gained in using the new UX power tubes if the proper B battery voltage is not applied to the plate of the tube. These tubes were designed for power amplification and therefore the tube will not function as such if the correct "B" battery voltage is not applied. In addition to using the proper "B" battery voltage, it is also necessary to use the proper "C" battery.

ROOSTER'S ESCAPE

"Cackle, cackle," said Mrs. Hen. "Now what's the matter?" asked Red Top, the Rooster, in a very cross tone.

Dashing Around the Corner.

"You're always grumbling about something, Mrs. Hen. Why can't you rest, and be quiet, and stay where you were in the hen house?"

"Cackle! Cackle! Hurry! Get out of the way!" Mrs. Hen went on saying, excitedly.

"Don't you see that automobile coming?"

"Oh, where—where?" asked Red Top, who was quite frightened now.

But he did not have to ask "where" a third time.

There was the automobile dashing around the corner and almost upon him.

"Dear me," he said, "to which side shall I run?

"I'm right—right in the middle of the road."

"Cackle, cackle!" came from Mrs. Hen. "Come this side. Come where I am."

"No, cackle, cackle, you will reach this side more quickly. Come this side," said Mrs. White Hen.

Now Red Top had gone to the side of the road where Mrs. Hen was waiting for him when Mrs. White Hen had called to him from the other side.

And back again he went across the road.

The big people in the automobile had thought, of course, that Red Top was quite safe on the side with Mrs. Hen, when he had suddenly turned around and rushed across again for all he was worth.

"Oh, help, help," shouted Red Top, "I'm being killed! A cruel automobile is running me down."

But no, the automobile had been stopped just in time. And there it waited until Red Top made up his mind to really go to one side and get out of its way.

But he had lost several of his beautiful feathers in hurrying and Mrs. Hen began to scold.

"It's a wonder," she said, "that you weren't killed. Then, who would have crowed and made every one get up in the morning?

"You say you are the best crower—then why don't you try to look after yourself?"

"Nonsense," said Red Top, who had recovered from his scare, "I guess I know what I'm about.

"If I was a little undecided which side of the road I wanted to be on—well, that's my own affair.

"And, too, didn't I make that automobile stop?

"That's the way to treat them. The trouble with most roosters is that they're afraid of automobiles. They flatter them and rush out of their way.

"As for me—I get them puzzled to know just where and when I'm going.

"I was in existence, or rather my family was, long, long, long years before automobi'es were.

"It is time some of these modern things were shown that they are not the whole show.

"I taught a few lessons that time."

But Red Top trembled a little as he heard the sound of an automobile horn in the distance, and all the others knew that though he was crowing now he was pretty much afraid of automobiles and of people who were in such a hurry that they wouldn't stop to consider the life of a poor rooster or hen.

Mrs. Hen Began to Scold.

Oh no, they knew he was not so free of fear as he was pretending to be and as every once in a while he boasted of being.

They knew, too, that he knew how inconsiderate people often were and how people felt that each and every road belonged to them and that anything that got in the way or went upon the road did so at their own risk.

The roads didn't like to have people feel that way about them, but what were the roads to do about it, downtrodden as they were?

And the roosters and the hens? They must take care so that automobile owners could go dashing thoughtlessly through the country.

HONOR PADEREWSKI WITH D. S. C. MEDAL

Ignace Jan Paderewski, world renowned and honored as the master of the piano and former Polish premier, recently was the proud recipient of honors in other fields.

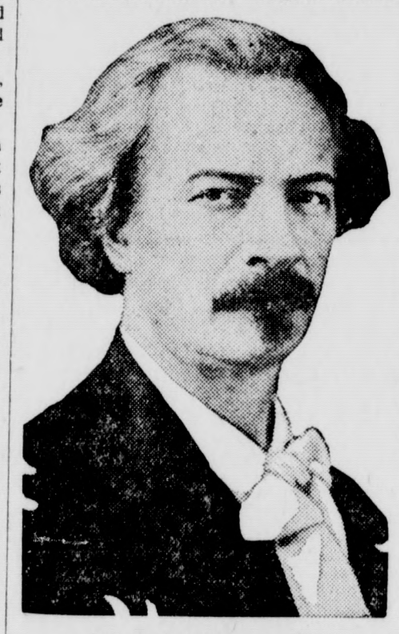
National tribute by the American Legion was accorded the great pianist in New York, when he was presented with the American Legion Distinguished Service Medal, held by only eight persons in addition to Paderewski.

National Commander John R. McQuigg in conferring the medal, declared:

"The Legion honors Paderewski because having reached supreme rank as an artist, he left the concert hall and entered the assemblies of statesmen and potentates and carved out a place for a new Poland among the nations of the earth. We honor him also because, having amassed a fortune, he spent it all that hospitals might be built, armies might be financed and all things needful might be done to build again the country which he loved and restore it to more than its ancient glory. And we honor him above all because, all this accomplished, he gave freely of his music that through the American Legion the orphaned and dependent children of America's World war veterans and the sick and disabled among those veterans might be cared for.

"In recognition of these supreme contributions to the advancement of humanity in the three spheres of statesmanship, art and philanthropy, the American Legion Distinguished Service Medal is bestowed upon him."

Those holding the Legion Distinguished Service Medal are Marshal Ferdinand Foch of France; Admiral Beatty of Great Britain; Gen. Baron Jacques of Belgium; General Diaz of Italy; Charles Bertrand of France, founder-president of Fidac, interallied veterans' federation; Gen. John J. Pershing; Admiral R. E. Coontz and Gen. Josef Haller of Poland.



Ignace Jan Paderewski.

Paderewski gave the proceeds from four concerts to the American Legion endowment fund for disabled veterans and orphans of the World war. His gift was the largest individual contribution made to the fund and totaled approximately $30,000.

Seeking Information on Effects of War Gassing

Views of physicians with actual front-line experience on the question of the after-effects of wartime gassing on the respiratory tracts and internal organs of the men affected are being sought by the national rehabilitation committee of the American Legion.

Director Frank T. Hines of the United States veterans' bureau has promised to send out a questionnaire to all of the bureau's medical experts who served overseas. The chemical warfare service of the War department is also assisting the Legion in the work.

Very little is known on the subject, according to the committee. What little has been written about it has been the work of men who taught medicine in the colleges during the war, rather than of men who had actual experience with such cases.

World's Record, Raising Money for Legion Fund

A world's record in raising funds for The American Legion's endowment fund for disabled veterans and orphans of the World war is claimed by Williamson post of the Legion at Williamson, New York.

With an endowment quota of $600 the village of Williamson, population 650 persons, subscribed a total of $2,400. This sum was raised by 750 contributions ranging in amounts from $.25 to $25 each. The average subscription approached $4 per person. The post has only forty-six members. The solicitation was accomplished in three days by twenty-five post members.

Cobb Breaks Record on Every Hit

Cobb, who topples over at least e baseball records every time he ly swings on the horsehide, stands ance of setting new marks about housand times this season if he tinues to play and holds the pace is first start in the twenty-second of his career in the majors.

he veteran pilot of the Detroit ericans, who holds more baseball rds than anybody else in the game, ted his first 1926 game with the ers, his previous appearances be- as a pinch hitter, and he clinched team's victory over Chicago by his ow work and incidentally chalked a whole hatful of new records. His le, double and triple in four at- s brought in four runs and Cobb ed twice himself.

When Ty singled he bettered three ting marks previously held by him- —those of the most hits in any gue, the most singles ever made by one major leaguer and the most total bases for one major player, the latter record previously standing at 5,356. Then he doubled, passing his old record of 1,036 extra long bingles, rebreaking his totals for hits and the most bases and adding to another old Cobb record, that of the most extra bases on extended hits.

His three-bagger boosted five records—the four just reset by his double and his total for triples. When he crossed the plate two times he shattered still another, pushing up his total for most runs ever scored by one league player to 2,040.

The trick in it is that Cobb is so far out in front that he automatically boosts a series of top marks every time he hits. In addition, there exists the possibility of his besting his lifetime batting percentage and his numerous "season" and "consecutive" records during the season.

Evans Has Plan to Make Umpiring Easy

Umpiring made easy. If such a thing is possible, Billy Evans, famous American league umpire, believes he has the solution. Evans, who has served for 20 years in the American league and officiated in six world's series, has a new plan which he feels will greatly lighten the burdens of the baseball umpire.

It is a training school, a correspondence course in umpiring, that covers every situation that can come up on the ball field; clearly explains every rule and gives you the opinion of Evans as to how a ball game should be umpired.

Every ump anxious to advance in a profession that offers big things should write Billy Evans at 1200 West Third street, Cleveland, for the complete details of this novel plan.

LEONARD COMING BACK TO FIGHT

Drawing Power as a Movie Star Has Vanished.

Benny Leonard, retired lightweight champion of the world, is going to return to the ring. That has been said before, but this time the announcement comes from a source that is thoroughly reliable. Benny has heard the call of the turnstiles, which is a way of saying that he has heard the rattling of the money bags.

Benny is coming back as a welterweight, although he still insists that he could make 135 pounds—the lightweight limit—if it were absolutely necessary. Leonard's next fight will be with Mickey Walker and the title involved will be the welterweight championship of the world, which the Jersey boy holds.

Leonard retired, he said, because the business of professional pugilism got on his mother's nerves. She asked him to quit the ring, and he did, taking to the more lofty business of the footlights.

The real reason for Leonard's retirement, however, could probably be attributed to two things. One was that he found it exceedingly difficult if not physically impossible to make 135 pounds. The other was that he desired above everything else to retire from the ring undefeated. Leonard has said more than once that Jack McAuliffe, the retired and undefeated lightweight champion of the world, speaking of a generation ago, was a very wise man. This is what Benny had to say on that subject:

"There is no fighter in the world who won't meet his master some day or other if he sticks to the racket long enough. If I continued to fight as lightweight champion of the world it is certain that some boy would come along some day and get me. If I retire with the title I will always have an asset. I have got mine in a financial way. I don't need to worry. Why should I keep on until some kid comes along and smacks the old man on the chin?"

Finn Runner Will Make United States His Home

Albin Stenroos of Finland, who won the Olympic marathon race at Paris in 1924, has decided to remain in the United States as a member of the Finnish-American A. C.

Stenroos came to this country last winter after his countryman, Paavo Nurmi, had received ovations everywhere, but the long-distance man's successes were not numerous. In his first test, an hour's run at the Yankee stadium, New York, he bested the Boston star, Jimmy Hennigan, by only 50 yards.

A month later the Finn, who is forty years old, was beaten by Clarence Demar in a 15-mile race at Cambridge, Mass. Hennigan took his measure at 15 miles in Boston in August and Willie Goodwin of New York conquered him at three miles in a New Haven race.

Stenroos' last two appearances gave him victories, one at Cambridge, Mass., where he downed Demar in a 15-mile race, and again at Baltimore, February 28 this year, when he won the 10-mile modified marathon from a field of 55 runners, bettering the former record for the distance held by Verne Booth, former Johns Hopkins star, by 23 seconds.

LOOT!

By ELMO SCOTT WATSON

(©, 1926, Western Newspaper Union.)

From Piracy to Poverty

AFTER Captain Avery had captured the Great Mogul's ship, the Gunsway, with its rich cargo, the news of his exploit was not long in reaching England and almost overnight he became something of a national hero. Perhaps it is not to be wondered at that the English should fail to feel pained because a Moslem ship had been his victim but it is curious that Avery's raids on English shipping should be forgotten so soon. At any rate, the most extravagant stories were spread about. One was that Avery had taken the Mogul's daughter with him to Madagascar where he had married her and was living in royal state, the father of several little princes and princesses!

It is true that Avery sailed for Madagascar, and one incident of the voyage showed that he lacked even the proverbial "honor among thieves," which the usual pirate leader possessed. He had called the captains of the other vessels in the pirate fleet aboard his ship and explained to them that for safety's sake it were better to have all the booty placed upon his ship. They agreed to this. Then Avery altered his course, slipped away in the night and his too-trusting confederates never saw him again. He immediately sailed to the West Indies and, upon his arrival at New Providence in the Bahamas, bribed the governor with 20 pieces of eight and two of gold to get him a pardon.

It was impossible for Avery to sell his plunder—including many diamonds and other gems—without being questioned, so he prepared to return to Europe. In the north of Ireland he disposed of his ship where the crew dispersed and Avery went to Dublin. But here, too, he found it difficult to dispose of his jewels, so he decided to try his luck in England. He settled at Bideford under an assumed name and through a friend opened negotiations with merchants in Bristol.

Some of these merchants came to see him, took some of the diamonds and a few gold cups and returned to Bristol to dispose of them. At first they sent him a small amount of money, promising to pay him in full when the goods were sold. Avery waited in vain for full payment. Then it began to dawn upon him that there were others besides himself who knew the fine art of "double-crossing." He began writing pleading letters to the merchants and from time to time they sent him a few shillings—hardly enough to provide him with food and lodging. Finally he fell ill and died. Of all the vast fortune he had once had, there was not enough to buy him a coffin in which to be buried. During all the time he was living in extreme poverty in the little cottage in Bideford the stories of the "Grand Pirate" who was reigning as a king in Madagascar were being told and retold all over Europe. So it was proved again that "Piracy does not pay."

"Good Fortune's" Bad Luck

CAPTAIN BRIGSTOCK WEAVER is not known so well as some of the other famous pirates, but it is doubtful if any of them were more successful at their trade than he. A native of Hereford, England, he learned his first lessons in piracy under the notorious Captain Anstis who turned over his own ship, the Good Fortune, to Weaver after the pirate leader had captured the Morning Star.

At first the Good Fortune proved to be "good fortune" for Captain Weaver, indeed, for in it he captured no less than 60 sailing vessels in the West Indies and on the banks of Newfoundland and many of them proved to be rich prizes. Here is the list, as recorded by one pirate historian:

"In August, 1722, he took a Dutch ship and out of her got 100 pieces of holland, value 800 pounds sterling, and 1,000 pieces of eight. On November 20, he plundered the Dolphi, of London, of 300 pieces of eight and 40 gallons of rum.

"Out of the Don Carlos (Lot Neekins, master) he stole 400 ounces of silver, 50 gallons of rum, 1,000 pieces of eight, 100 pistols and other goods.

"Out of the Portland, ten pipes of wine valued at 250 pounds sterling."

His prosperity soon came to an end, however, and in May, 1723, we learn of Weaver, dressed in rags begging from door to door in Bristol where he was telling a tale of how he was an honest sailorman who had been captured by wicked pirates and had but lately escaped from them! So well did he play his role that he was soon dressed in fine clothes, carrying ten pounds sterling or more in his pockets and lodging at the Griffith inn, the best hostelry in the town.

But this new-found prosperity soon led to his downfall. One day on the streets of Bristol he met a sea captain who claimed acquaintance with him and invited him into a tavern for a drink. There the captain reminded Weaver that he had once been a victim of Weaver's pirate crew who had stolen all of his cargo of liquor. However, he said, Weaver had used him well, so he was disposed to let bygones be by-gones if Weaver would give him four hogsheads of cider. When Weaver refused the captain betrayed him and he was hanged.

Fox Neatly Changed Places With Hunter

A resident of Middletown, Conn., while driving over a mountain saw a fox near the road. Parking his car the man got out with his gun and started on a long chase. Strangely enough the fox did not stop for the man to catch up to him and after a while the fox was nowhere to be seen. Disappointed and foot weary, the man returned to his auto.

What do you suppose the hunter found on his return to the auto? Something had fallen clean through the top of his car. On the front seat, looking intently at the dashboard with all its "finxin's" was Mr. Fox himself. The hunter was so stupefied at the sight that he dropped his gun and ran down the road as fast as his legs could carry him. When he got back with reinforcements the fox had left for parts unknown.—Pathfinder Magazine.

BON VOYAGE TO THE SENIORS

Jefferson high's pioneer class will graduate tonight in the high school auditorium at 8 o'clock. This class has a wonderful history.

Four years ago, in 1922, the school started with this class fifty-eight strong. Tonight but fourteen finish the race. To them we extend our heartiest congratulations. In spite of discouragements and troubles, they have held on and forged ahead.

Wednesday night the Junior class tendered these graduates a wonderful farewell banquet. The scheme of the ceremonies was laid along nautical lines. Following the dinner, these graduates and officials spoke:

Toastmaster, William Sweeney, the Junior class president.

"The Builder," Stella Jensen, clerk of the board.

"The Pilot," C. K. Binkley, class teacher.

"First Mate," Rosa Bauer, Senior class president.

"The Crew," Senior class members Edna Hooton, Lawrence Vireno, Victor Saarinen, Anita Varni, Louis Plansky, Joe Drucker, Mildred Ross, Edward Goldkuhl, Martha Worst, Harold Fischer, Winston Barghoorn, Albert Saarinen, Rae Wolfe.

"The Captain," Neil O. Best, principal.

REDWOOD CITY PLANS TO ANNEX DUMBARTON

Further expansion of Redwood City to the southwest is seen as a possibility with a movement now under way for the annexation of the Dumbarton Oaks district to the county seat. Petitions asking that the board of trustees of Redwood City call a special election are now being circulated in Dumbarton Oaks and it is said they are being rapidly signed.

PIONEER RESIDENT CALLED

William Stanton, pioneer resident of San Mateo and a retired capitalist, died suddenly at his home in San Mateo Wednesday night. He had been suffering from a heart ailment for some time, but death was unexpected. Stanton had just taken his customary evening walk through the business section of San Mateo and had returned to his home when he was taken ill. A physician was summoned, but Stanton was dead upon his arrival.

A MOVIE SWINDLE

Officers and men of the Coast Guard stationed along the North Carolina coast have been swindled out of $30,000 or more by two clever alleged moving picture promoters, according to the Elizabeth City Independent.

The scheme worked by the swindlers consisted of selling stock in a moving picture intended to show the activities of the Coast Guard in saving life and property from wrecked vessels, and illustrating the courage and skill of the brave guardsmen. Officers were expected to take stock to the amount of $500, while enlisted men were to take $100 worth each. All were assured that their investments would be returned in about six months, and that later profits on the picture would yield them about 400 per cent.

Most of the members of the Coast Guard who were approached are said to have contributed to the plan, but after nearly two years, no returns have been forthcoming.

This is just one more illustration of the ease with which slick schemers are able to separate otherwise intelligent people from their money. Unfortunately, all the warnings which may be broadcasted seem ineffective. when pitted against the smooth talk of a swindling promoter.

A little colored girl, a newcomer in Sunday school, gave her name to the teacher as "Fertilizer Johnson."

Later the teacher asked the child's mother if that was right.

"Yes, ma'am, dat's her name," said the fond mother. "You see she was named for me and her father. Her father's name am Ferdinand, and my name is 'Liza. So we named her Fertilizer."

Judge—"What is this man charged with?"

Officer—"Intoxication, your honor."

Prisoner—"Judge, I'm as sober as you are this minute."

Judge—"Pleads guilty—ten days! Next case!
